

Driving for Work

The London Road Safety Council urges employers to carry out risk assessments and develop effective policies that satisfy their duty under relevant legislation. These policies should include ensuring drivers are correctly trained and licensed for the vehicles they are required to drive, correct maintenance of vehicles and time management to allow enough time to safely complete journeys.