

Mobile Phones

Using a hand held mobile phone whilst driving is illegal and research shows that driver's reaction times are impaired even when using a hands free phone. Consequently, the London Road Safety Council urges drivers to turn their mobile phone off or divert to voicemail prior to starting their journey.

Drivers and riders of vehicles must not read or send texts.

Pedestrians are encouraged to avoid using their mobile phones when crossing roads.